DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The claims are replete with unclear language and consequently it is impossible to reasonably interpret their intended meaning.

Claim 1 is replete with unclear language and consequently it is impossible to reasonably interpret the intended meaning of independent claim 1. For instance, it is unclear from lines 1-3, which propellant tube of a plurality of propellant tubes is being fixed and centered between which structures. Are the open ends of a propellant tube clamped between two structures? If they are not, the method is inoperable. It is further unclear what defines "a large number of consecutive perforation operations" because a large number is a relative term. In lines 5 and 6, the meaning of "and at least as far as its main part through the wall of the same" is confusing and it is unclear which structure is being referred to? In line 7, it is unclear which position the limitation "their position" refers to because no position of the perforation pins has been previously claimed? In line 7, does the limitation "previously unprocessed area" mean an area of the propellant tube that was not previously perforated? In lines 8-10, the meaning of "an all-over perforation with the desired e-dimension between all the perforations" is unknown. Is the perforation pattern predetermined with a desired constant e-dimension spacing distance between the perforations, the e-dimension perforation spacing distance being the predetermined spacing between the perforations for that specific propellant contained in a specific charge, the e-dimension perforation spacing corresponding to the spacing that allows the propellant to burn through completely between the perforations during the firing of a specific projectile from the time of ignition until the time at which the projectile exits the barrel (see page 5 of the applicant's specification for a definition of the term "e-dimension").

Since claim 1 is a method of making claim, it is suggested that the claim be amended or rewritten in the conventional manner with convention method steps and with appropriate structure and functional language so that it can be properly compared with the known prior art.

The remaining claims 2-20 should now be reviewed by the applicant to ensure that they are compliant with 35 USC 112 2nd paragraph issues, paying due regard to proper antecedent basis issues. See for instance, claim 4, line 2, "the feed stage" which lacks a proper antecedent basis in claim 1.

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See the attached PTO-FORM 892.
